Meet Aryan

An inspired entrepreneur

Aryan chose UCalgary for its reputation as Canada's most entrepreneurial university. Attending UCalgary has made a big difference in his academic and personal journey.

He started a club called Product Society to encourage students to start their own businesses. The club teaches students how to turn their ideas into real companies.

As an international student, Aryan wanted to make solid connections in his new city. Completing four paid internships during his degree helped him learn new skills and develop a network in Calgary.

A self-identified entrepreneur, Aryan created an app called InterviewPal during his studies. The app uses AI to help students master the art of job interviewing.

Imagine where your UCalgary journey can take you. Start something.
